

Why do I have to take the RES class?

Last Modified on 11/17/2023 9:46 am MST

Graduate students who did not meet the general admission requirements, or previous coursework did not cover all necessary content areas, may be required to complete a RES course as part of their graduate degree program:

- RES500: Fundamentals of Quantitative Analysis

or

- RES501: Fundamentals of Research and Writing

These courses are designed to prepare students for the coursework requirements they will encounter throughout their program. If you have any questions regarding these classes, please contact your Student Success Counselor.
