Withdrawal - Attendance (WA)

Attendance at CSU-Global is defined as submitting an assignment in the grade book: posting a discussion, responding to another student's discussion post, completing a mastery exercise (within Canvas), submitting a portfolio milestone or a critical thinking assignment.

If you do not post attendance in a course for 21 consecutive days, you will be administratively withdrawn from the course. After 14 consecutive days of not posting attendance, you will receive an email notifying you that you have 7 days to post before being withdrawn. If you are withdrawn from the course, a WA will appear on your official transcript. Click here for more information on the Attendance Policy.

Consequences of an attendance withdrawal are:

- An attendance course withdrawal will result in a "WA" grade. "WA" grades do not count toward Grade Point Average (GPA) and will reflect as a "WA" on official transcripts.
- A withdrawal is considered not completing a course. Generally, this means you will need to retake the course for completion later. This will also affect the completion rate for SAP and Provisional Students.
- Tuition and fees will not be adjusted for a withdrawal.
- If you are using federal financial aid, a "W" can affect funds that have been received or have yet to be disbursed, which means that your financial aid may be returned.
- If you are an undergraduate student with a WA on your account then you are no longer eligible for Latin Honors.
